Mitchell B. Goldberg is a seasoned litigator and trained mediator. With significant experience representing business and financial services clients in regulatory matters, commercial disputes, customer arbitrations, and other cases, Mitch has advocated in matters before Illinois state and federal courts ranging from securities fraud cases, to contract disputes and enforcement of restrictive covenants, to trust litigation and guardianship matters. He also has represented regional and national clients in arbitrations before the National Futures Association (NFA), the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and various exchanges, as well as some foreign arbitration forums.

Mitch proactively works with in-house counsel to resolve and prevent litigation, whether it be customer complaints or business-to-business disputes. He has also represented companies and their employees in regulatory inquiries and enforcement matters before self-regulatory organizations (FINRA, NFA and exchanges) and a variety of federal and state agencies (including the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission, U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Illinois Securities Department and Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation).

Apart from his legal practice, Mitch is active in numerous bar associations and legal organizations and has served as the president of the Decalogue Society of Lawyers, America's oldest Jewish bar association. Mitch has served as a member of the adjunct faculty at IIT's Chicago-Kent College of Law, where he has taught courses on securities litigation. Mitch is also devoted to giving back to his community and serves as a volunteer director of several organizations. With his loving wife, Natasha, Mitch tries to teach his four kids, Rachel, Zachary, Jesse and Abigail, about the importance of education, service and kindness.
